

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

Great Canadian; Aemilius Jarvis Passes

WAS GREAT SAILOR AND HORSEMAN

Aemilius Jarvis, S.S.D., yachtsman and financier, died Thursday morning at five o'clock in the Private Patients' Pavilion, Toronto General Hospital. He had two operations recently for gallstones.

Commodore Jarvis bore the letters "S.S.D." after his name, signifying that he had been awarded the Special Service Decoration for his work in the Great War for the Empire's naval forces.

Both ships and men were recruited by the commodore, and he himself led a small "cutting out expedition," which brought an extra ship into Britain's service when ships were scarce and urgently needed.

Commodore Jarvis, for the British Government, had been buying up merchantmen which could be used as "mystery ships" in the war against submarines. The Canadian ports had been emptied of such craft, so he turned his attention to ports south of the border. In the then-neutral United States he found an ideal vessel, and promptly and secretly negotiated for her purchase.

It was not until long after the war ended that the tale was told of how, when she was ready to sail, the U.S. government stepped in and refused clearance. Commodore Jarvis, apparently accepting this order, returned to Canada. A few nights later a little band of Toronto yachtsmen, with him at the head, slipped back across the border. They boarded the ship as she lay at anchor, got steam up, opened cable and headed for the open sea.

They got away with it—and another ship was added to Britain's "mystery ship" fleet.

Commodore Jarvis had seen the last war coming. Long before he had urged the formation of a naval reserve, and had prepared a list of countless names of volunteers. The then government, however, refused to act on his suggestions until war had actually been declared. Then he was asked to recruit the men with all speed.

Commodore Jarvis once told of what "all speed" meant.

The first day he opened his office on Bay street for recruiting there was a mere trickle of men. The second and third days the flow increased rapidly. On the

LARGE AREA IS PROTECTED

A survey of police forces in the 26 municipalities of York County, which has just been completed, discloses a total of 165 county and municipal officers are policing a 300,000 population in an area of 819.5 square miles.

Compared with the policing strength of other large municipalities throughout the world, York County is very much understaffed, the survey reveals.

In United States and Great Britain the ratio of police per population is one officer for every 1,000 population. In the city of Toronto the ratio is one officer for every 625 persons.

In York County the ratio is .66 police for every 1,000 population.

The survey was made by Chief Constable George Stuart at the request of the York County Council and the York County Police Committee to determine the actual strength of the police forces in suburban Toronto and the rural sections, and for the distribution of county officers. Information obtained from this survey will also be placed before the special county police committee considering the offer of Attorney-General Gordon Conant to place five provincial police officers in the county.

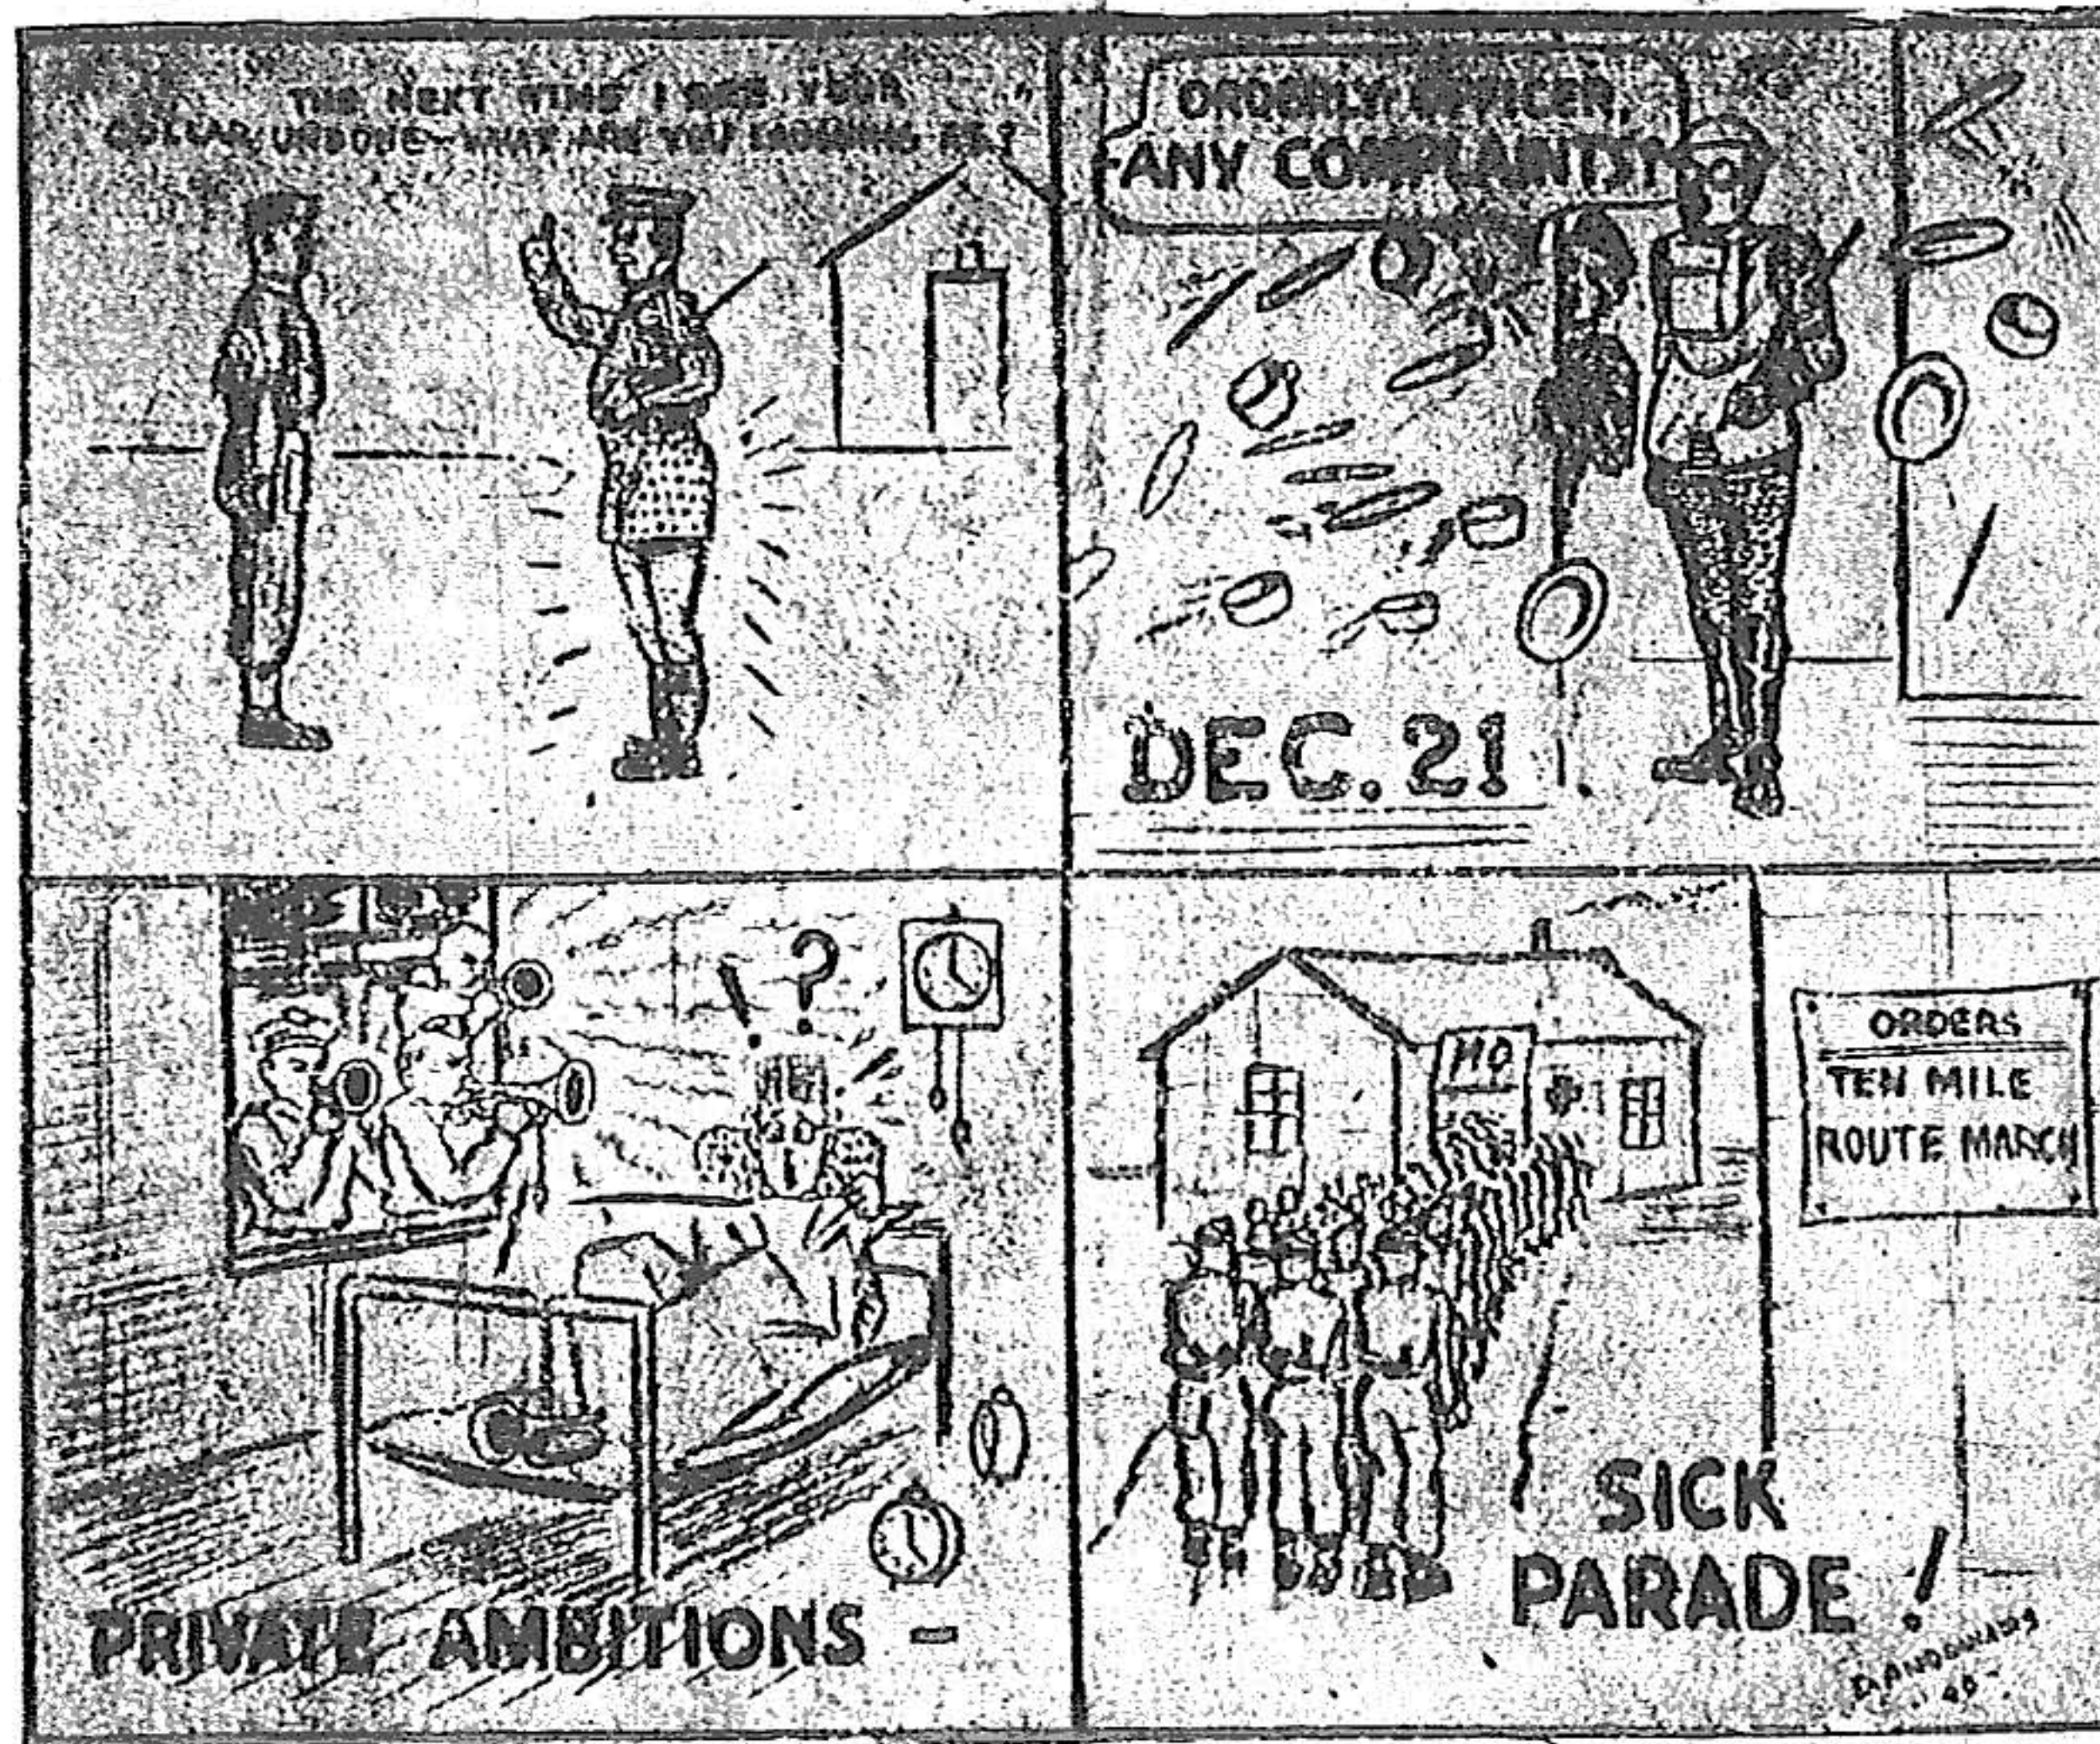

Despite the limited police force, York County has one of the best records in the province for crime prevention and crime detection, and considerable credit is accorded the co-operation given by the county auxiliary force to municipal police, according to members of the police committee.

Forest Hill is the only municipality whose police force compares favorably with its population, with 13 police officers for a population of 11,117.

York Township, considered one of the most efficient forces in Canada, has 49 men to take care of 75,842 population, while East York has 16 men to take care of 38,975 population.

Other police forces and their population are: Aurora, one officer for 2,817; East Gwillimbury, one officer for 3,514; Etobicoke, seven officers for 14,974; Georgina, one officer for 1,394; King Township, two officers for 4,804; Leaside, four officers for 4,001; Long Branch, four officers for 4,258; Markham Township, one officer for 3,369; Markham Village, one officer for 1,170; Mimico, six officers for 7,195; Newmarket, two officers for 3,648; New Toronto, seven officers for 7,175; North Gwillimbury, one officer for 1,800; North York, nine officers for 18,205; Richmond Hill, one officer for 1,295; Scarborough, nine officers for 23,208; Stouffville, one officer for 1,192; Sutton, one officer for 6,375; Swansea, five officers for 5,111; Weston, three officers for 5,285; Whitby, two officers for 3,070; Woodbridge, one officer for 914.

GAS WHAT?

Distinguished Scientist Expounds

By Professor LeGaz

This article concerns gas. Although you have been taught a great deal already by your officers, I thought it advisable to supplement their teaching with some sound ideas of my own. As one thoroughly experienced in gas (seven weeks at Consumers'), I found your course sadly lacking in some of the finer points, especially with regard to detection. For this reason I have sacrificed my valuable time to set down here methods by which you (trainees) may be rendered even more susceptible (or maybe it's invulnerable) to gas.

As you know, there are four types of gases. These are (1) Choking gas—which chokes, (2) Blister gas—which blisters, and a couple of others that I can't remember, but which, in all probability, are not very important. Of the first class the one known as Phosgene is the most dangerous. It is distinguished by its odour, which resembles that of musty hay. Now, here is the faulty part of the system you are taught.

If you are a city fellow the chances are very great that you would not recognize the smell of musty hay. Realizing this, I, Professor LeGaz, have devised a special kit called, aptly enough, "Gaspar's Gas-bag" in one corner of which is placed a small bale of musty hay. This will enable you, on reaching a contaminated area, to recognize phosgene. If musty hay is not available, or if the bag is so constructed that by the time you need the hay it will have become quite musty.

Chlorine is another of the choking gases and has the smell of bleach. For its recognition my kit-bag is equipped with a 40 oz. bottle of Javel water which, as you know, also smells strongly of bleach. My original idea was to carry only 2 oz. of Javel water, but the salesman from whom I bought it explained how much more economical it was to buy in large quantities, and I was quick to take advantage of such a sensible suggestion. Moreover, if you

BOMBS FAILING TO EXPLODE SAVES LIFE

The following interesting letter telling of several narrow escapes from German bombs, has been received from Pte. Bill Raymond, Newmarket boy in England.

Nov. 5, 1940.

Dear Ang:

Well, I have been going to thank you three or four times for the paper, but I have always put it off. So this time I will say thanks a lot for the paper.

Well, how are things around Newmarket now? I guess you have quite a progressive little town now that the soldiers are staying there. Are they very wild on pay day or do they go to Bradford? I see by your paper that they have no wet canteen, though I guess they keep Jim Sloss and Ken Mount busy. Gee, I'd like to be there for one pay day. Is Cousins a very popular place now with them? I think Cousins would have to enlarge their place to accommodate the soldiers, wouldn't they?

Say, I'll tell you about my first real scare. It happened a week ago Saturday night. I had been watching a searchlight trying to pick out a plane when the dog-gone cuss unloaded his bombs. Well, the concussion from the first one knocked me down, the second one covered me with mud and sod and the far from it knocked the wind out of me. My stomach and knees were sore for a couple of days afterwards. The third one didn't go off. It landed about 20 yards from me. You should have seen the hole it made when it did go off. Well, I left that neighborhood awfully fast, seven if I could hardly breathe and everything was quiet for a while. I went over to get my shaving equipment out of my truck and another cuss let go his bombs, and then another guy. They all landed near me, all within 150 feet. Two of them didn't go off. Say, was I scared! Wow! I had seen plenty of dogfights in the daytime and plenty of bombs dropped before. I have been at a place when a German machine gunned it, and just razed him for missing, but I don't care for any more near misses like that one. I laughed about it later, and the rest of my squadron had a good laugh at me when I told them, but they didn't laugh when they saw the holes, though. I got a laugh back at one of them yesterday. He was going to Caterham yesterday on a motor cycle when a bomb hit the side of the road. The truck back of him was pretty badly damaged, two big holes in the roof and half the side knocked off. The driver didn't get hurt much. The D. R. just got shaken up a bit, and was he ever nervous when he got back! Say, there goes the air raid signal. If anything comes close I'll tell you about it. I am going out now to watch.

Well, Ang, it was a good thing I did go out. I saw a good fight, and then some, for about twenty

Country Cousins Respond To Call

A SHAME TO STAY IN BED TILL 6.30

On the twenty-second day of November, 1940, there landed into the Military Training Centre at Newmarket, a few bushels of hayseeds. We 21 and 22 year old farm boys were part of the second group to be called up for National Defence training.

To say we were dumb and awkward is putting it mildly. We had not the foggiest idea about things military. A few have never been away from home before. We surely must have given the officers and N.C.O.'s a good many headaches. Maybe if the officers had used the words "Gee" and "Haw" and "Whoa" in the commands instead of "Right Turn," "Left Turn," and "Halt," we might have caught on sooner. Although we were familiar with harness, we got into a hopeless tangle when we tried to assemble our packs and straps. Our marching technique resembled the ramblings of a herd of sheep.

It seemed a shame to lie in bed until 6.30 when we had been used to getting up at 4:00 or 4:30. We were supposed to get toughened up while here, but most of us found ourselves getting soft with so little real work to do.

Officers and N.C.O.'s didn't have to be told that we were from the backwoods and that some of us were from away back. However, while we may be slow to absorb knowledge, there is no doubt that we shall retain that knowledge at least as well as our more honoured city comrades.

Raw recruits (extremely raw) is the name by which we go now, but there is no reason why our farm boys cannot overcome our slowness and awkwardness and make first-class soldiers, able to take our place in the front lines and give as good an account of ourselves as did our fathers during the years 1914-1918.

When we came here from farms and backwoods we did not know an "about turn" from a "sergeant-major;" some did not even know their right from their left. Slowly but surely we have been progressing towards the acme of perfection which is the standard for a full-fledged warrior of our great Empire.

—The Colours.

We wish for you and yours the very merriest of Merry Christmas. We hope that the Yuletide will bring new pleasures and joys to you all.

DANCE FOR GREEK RELIEF FUND AT SCHOMBERG

Citizens of Schomberg and King township are going to show the Greeks that they really appreciate the licking they are giving the men of Mussolini, and on Friday evening, December 27, are sponsoring a dance in the town hall, Schomberg. Russ Creighton and his orchestra will provide the music for round and square dancing.

Admission is but 50c, with lunch provided.

Greenwich Observatory

By Golden Glow

The other evening there was a photo of Greenwich Observatory in the evening paper, and above it the words "Greenwich Observatory hit, but Time Ball carries on." No doubt many of you saw it too, and like myself, wondered just what it meant. The article was very brief, in fact, so brief that I shall just include it:

"London, Dec. 6—Greenwich Observatory was damaged in a recent air-raid, but the famous Time Ball continues to function, it was disclosed today.

"The revolving globe, the observatory clock and parts of the telescope room were damaged by high explosives and fire bombs.

"One of the damaged sections was built in 1675 from designs by Sir Christopher Wren."

It sounds very brief, but like a lot more places that have been bombed in London, there are a few redeeming features, for from a picture I have in an illustrated book of interesting places in and around London (1896) it looks to me as if only one corner has been damaged. Under the picture is the site of the lower commonly called Greenwich Castle, which was built by Duke Humphrey, and repaired in 1526 by Henry VIII.

It says the observatory was never intended for show, but for work, and the astronomer Royal and his staff are on duty continuously. Some of them must be there day and night, and not a moment of intermission is permitted in the observatory.

Also admission to the building is strictly limited to such individuals as are most likely to benefit by it.

The hill on which the observatory is built in Greenwich Park is 180 feet in height, and here is where the observation room is situated, where the mighty telescopes are situated, and where the work of the astronomers is carried on. We cannot rightly appreciate what that means.

The "Nautical Almanac" alone is one of immense importance. It is published three years in advance so as to be available for seamen going on long voyages. Mathematicians are constantly at work; not a star in the midnight heavens goes unobserved, the paths of planets are noted, the phenomena of gravity, light and magnetism are investigated, and the true time, "Greenwich time," flashed to all quarters of the globe.

The time-ball is the result of the labors of the observatory staff as well, for precisely at one o'clock, every day, the great time ball falls. It has escaped, according to the article in the paper.

As long as Charles II. Greenwich observatory has been in existence, for there is a record showing that under his Royal order, a man called Flamsteed was appointed astronomer at a salary of £100 per annum.

The dome that was demolished was the modern counterpart of what used to be known as the Octagon Room, with unusually tall windows and the telescope was wheeled round and pointed through which ever window gave the best view of the part of the sky under observation.

It is a far cry to modern structures where the huge instruments can be moved by the touch of a finger, or by pressing an electric button. Having the Dunlop Observatory so near Newmarket makes us all the more interested in Greenwich.

and we hope nothing that cannot be replaced was damaged. But when we read that the revolving globe, the observatory clock and parts of the telescope room were damaged by high explosives and fire bombs, we may be sure that many of the delicately constructed instruments have perished.

In the old Octagon room were carefully preserved the chronometers made by John Harrison, a carpenter of Hull, England, and a great mechanical genius, after a lifetime of effort, winning the £30,000 prize offered by the British government for a chronometer which, while being carried on long sea voyages, would still keep Greenwich time.

The phases of the moon are studied, but just as they work out a set of calculations in these latter days, the moon's movements become very erratic; and they have to start all over again. It is thought that this is due to the increasing speed with which the earth is rotating. Scientists, you know, claim that the earth has shifted on its axis, and so is upsetting all sorts of things—the weather included!

I wonder what daylight saving is doing to us! The new day starts at Greenwich at 12 midnight now, where it used to commence at midday. What a lot of things we would like to know about Greenwich observatory.

I fancy the tides are measured there by instruments, and foretold, as well as the weather. They can tell the position of a ship at sea, calculated by the latitude and longitude. Of course, we learned long ago at school, something about all that, and how the moon governs the tides, and that Greenwich was considered the centre of the earth, or something!

I have always wanted to go and pay a visit to Dunlop observatory—and this makes me want to all the more. I'd so like to look at the planets through one of those big telescopes—see the stars in the Milky Way—the great bear—the little dipper! Do you recall that verse in Genesis: "Look now toward Heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them."

What changes in Greenwich observatory since it was established in the southern bank of the Thames so many, many years ago. It almost staggers the imagination as to the wonders that have been wrought there by the succession of clever British scientists. And now it has been bombed! We do sincerely hope the damage is not irreparable.

P.S.—Do I hear you say, "For goodness sake, Golden Glow, write about something you know a bit about!" Well, I admit I do not know, but wouldn't I like to! Never too old to learn!

MENINGITIS CLAIMS BOY CHILDREN KEPT IN HOMES

School and Village Under Quarantine For Past Nine Days—Lift Precaution To-morrow

For the past nine days Keswick has been "deserted" by children, since the village and the school is under quarantine to those of 16 years and under.

These precautions were taken by Dr. O. M. Beattie, Medical Officer of Health, after a six-year-old boy died from spinal meningitis.

The child, Harold Walker, died within a few hours of being stricken. On the morning of Dec. 10, he complained to his mother that he was feeling sick. She called Dr. F. G. Pim, of Keswick, who had the boy removed to the Hospital for Sick Children. Harold died before he reached hospital.

Because the child was a pupil of the kindergarten class of the school, Dr. Beattie ordered the building closed immediately. In addition he put all children of the village under quarantine, and ordered their parents to keep them indoors. They were not allowed to play in their back yards.

Dr. Pim said that it was the first case of spinal meningitis that he had seen in his five years of practice at Keswick.

The quarantine was due to be lifted Friday.

TRANSIENT IS FREED IN NEWMARKET THEFT

Not satisfied with the identification provided by Crown witnesses, Judge James Parker in County Criminal Court, Monday, acquitted George Edward Anthony, of stealing a car and breaking into a Newmarket service station last October 13.

"There may be suspicions, but there is also a doubt as to the guilt of the accused, so I am finding him not guilty," His Honor said.

Norman Clay, charged jointly with Anthony, pleaded guilty and was remanded until Friday for sentence.

One witness for the Crown said he recognized Anthony as one of two men he saw in Cook's Newmarket service station.

In his own defence, Anthony said he left Toronto about 11.30 on the night of Oct. 12, intending to go to Cobalt to try and get a job. He said he got a ride on a milk truck to Aurora. Unable to obtain a further ride, he said he slept on the roadside.

Next morning, he continued, he started north again, but had not gone far before he was stopped by Officer Aubrey Fleury, of Aurora. He denied knowing Clay.

On account of Christmas there will be no local police court this week. Court will resume on Tuesday, December 31st.

WHITCHURCH COUNCIL IN LINE FOR RE-ELECTION

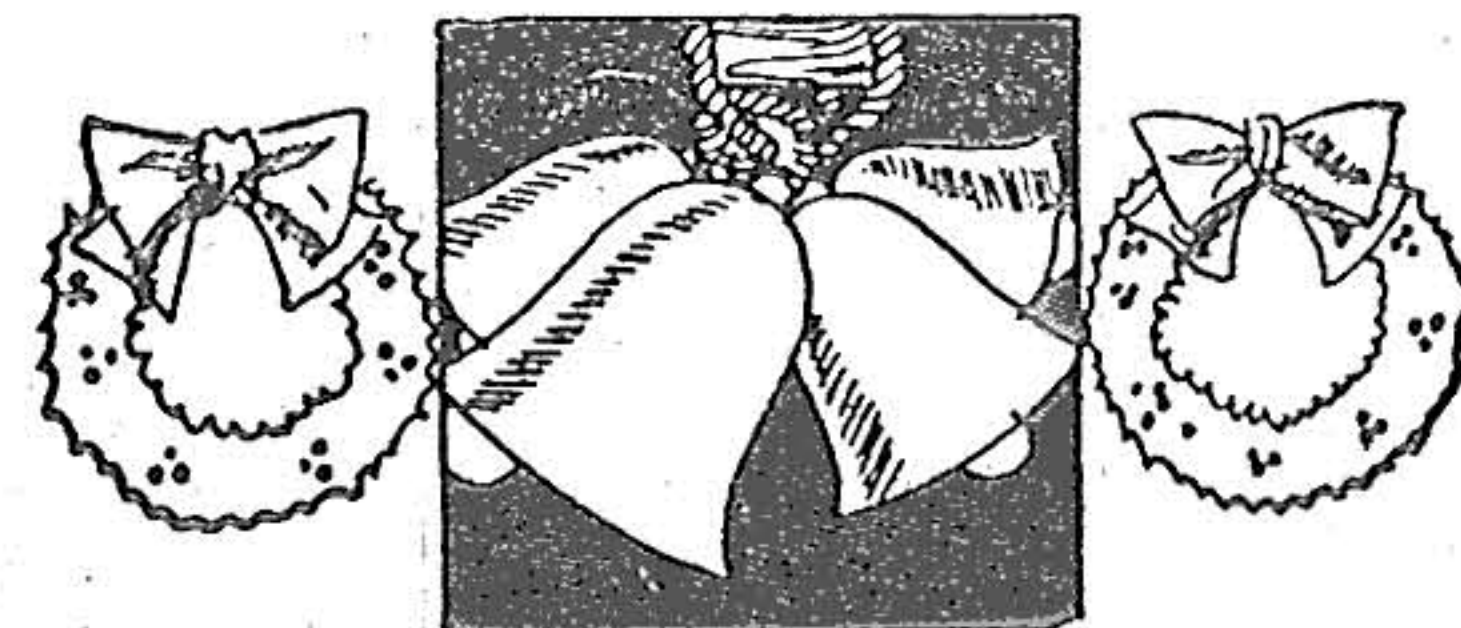

Whether Whitchurch council ever meet again with the same personnel or whether it goes to defeat, opinion is freely expressed that the boys who sat around the sturdy table at Vaudorf this past three or four years worked thoroughly in unison and with such efficiency that they have made a worthy record the ratepayers will not soon forget. The whole council intend to stand again for re-election on January 6.

At the final meeting Monday afternoon Regie C. E. Toole thanked the members for their co-operation, recalling that many difficult problems had been encountered, but that each had discharged his duty without fear or favor and in a creditable manner. Said the Reeve, "It is rare that a council could sit together four consecutive years and show so much unanimity. Having the good will of my colleagues has made my duty much pleasanter. At this meeting I have always declared my self for the coming year. Times may be hard, help scarce, but I have a goal in mind, and am willing to sacrifice. I may be able to achieve it."

My success so far has been due to a large extent to the co-operation of all. My deputy-reeve agrees that I should go on, and I appreciate his good will. This township has not had a warden since Mr. Seneca Baker filled that office in 1907, and this office should come north in 1942, and I believe I am fairly well advanced for the position. Of course there is many a slip between the cup and the lip, warned Mr. Toole. Anyway, if anyone should be defeated in any possible election, I would rather it be myself than the rest of you sitting here, he concluded.

Deputy Reeve Cook recalled his six years in office, and his intention to remain another term at the will of the ratepayers. He appreciated the fact that no member was pushing him to advancement, for he wanted to stand back and "see our reeve bring the honor to Whitchurch which the township deserved."

Council or George Leary, Councillor Herman Kidd, and Councillor Herb Wells, all announced that they propose to run for their present positions on the council.

BOXING-DAY A HOLIDAY

The Merchants Association decided in favor of closing the day following Xmas day. I think it is a good idea and would ask all citizens to co-operate as fully as possible.

I take this opportunity of wishing all the citizens a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

PROTECT CHILDREN WHEN CELEBRATING CHRISTMAS

Christmas time being a season of joy, every precaution should be taken to prevent any untoward circumstances which might enter into its celebration.

Too often the careless placing of lighted candles has resulted in painful burns, and even death, to those participating in the Yuletide festivities. "Santa Claus" has been the victim in innumerable cases.

Tiny electric lights now are most used in lighting the Christmas tree and that reduces the fire danger materially. If candles are to be used in the decoration—and they undoubtedly lend an effect not to be obtained by the electric lights—they should be placed on the mantel and in other secure locations where contact with their pretty flames is not likely to be made.

In Christmas sports involving the slightest danger, children should be directed in their play by an older person who is competent to effect a rescue if necessary.—Charles Frederick Wadsworth.

VANDORF

The many Vandorf friends were very sorry to learn of the passing of their former neighbour, Mrs. W. C. Tiffin, of Toronto. She was a native of Ireland and was in her 74th year. The funeral was private and interment was made at Weston. Mr. Tiffin was superintendent of Kingsley Farm a few years ago. Both he and Mrs. Tiffin took an active part in our church and community life.

Miss Elsie VanNostrand, nurse-in-training at Toronto East General Hospital, is spending a couple of weeks at her home.

Mr. Edward Willis of Creighton Mines is holidaying at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Willis.

Miss Jean Switzer is visiting in Toronto.

The Vandorf public school concert was given at the hall on Wednesday night. The same evening Hartman school gave theirs in the schoolhouse. Miss Ball and Mr. King, the teachers, selected part of each programme which were presented at Wesley Church on Friday night. The three entertainments were very much enjoyed, and Santa Claus concluded each one by distributing Christmas tree gifts.

The Wesley Y.P.U. are holding a candlelight service in the church on Sunday evening, Dec. 29, 8 p.m. standard time. Everyone is invited to join in this.

Miss Mabel Carr is the new Y.P.U. president. Miss Jean White is secretary-treasurer.

NEWMARKET SOLD- IER HAS NARROW ESCAPE

(Continued on Page 1 Col. 5) minutes after the air raid warning there were just our planes around. Then the Ack-Ack opened up and you could see away up, just about the size of a fly, about thirty or forty planes, and I guess the Ack-Ack made a hit because one of the planes came diving down. Two of the fellows in the plane jumped out and came down in their parachutes. About two thousand feet up the plane came out of the dive and we could see he was a German. Well, he tried to get away but he annoyed the people on the ground by trying to machine gun a bus that was stopped. He came down to about 500 feet and he wasn't paying much attention to anything but the bus. Two machine gun trucks opened up on him with Vickers and he crashed in a field about 10 feet off the road. His plane burned. It was a Junkers bomber. This all happened and finished within a half a mile of where I am staying. He flew right over here after the bus. Then we seen a good dog-fight. One of our planes was getting hell knocked out of him by four German planes when a flight of ours came to his rescue and got him out of it. They shot two of the German planes down. One of the Germans tried to bail out but his 'chute didn't open. What mess he is. I saw him falling and thought it was part of his motor. He landed on a golf course. He is the second one I have seen try to bail out and his 'chute didn't open. I wouldn't go over to see him though some of the fellows did.

Well, I have to go to dinner, so I will close for now. So long.

MAKE CHRISTMAS BURDEN, BE UNHAPPY REST OF YEAR

It is so customary nowadays to hear disparagement of Christmas as a season of vanity, selfish display, greed and covetousness that we like to point out the other side. Some of our cynics declare that Christmas gifts are themselves dictated by self-interest—that they are merely offered in the hope of a return—with interest—or are an exhibition of vanity. And yet, who would dare to say this of a mother, who deprives herself to give happiness to her children, or of the girl who willingly foregoes some little vanity for the pleasure of her parents? People who make Christmas a burden and a tax show the same attitude throughout the year—their own false standards of living are to blame, and not this holy festival.—Rural New-Yorker.

PLEASANTVILLE

News and Views of People and Things by Isabel Inglis Colville

People

The January meeting of the Pine Orchard Willing Workers will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon McClure on the afternoon of Wednesday, January 8. Note the change of date made necessary when New Year's day falls on the first Wednesday. Mrs. George Hunt is the assistant hostess and will read the lesson. Mrs. McClure will lead in prayer. Roll call, "A New Year's Resolution." The election of officers will follow, and the members are asked to make one New Year's resolution in particular, to be present at as many meetings as possible.

December, so far, seems to have held within its compass, almost every variety of weather one could imagine, but perhaps none held so much menace as the icy roads of Monday morning.

Our new road is minus guard-rails at one curve, near Bogartown, and quite a number of drivers on Monday morning came perilously close to going over the bank.

Mrs. Colville's Christmas party for the girls of the neighbourhood is to take place on Saturday afternoon.

Many homes in the neighbourhood are making ready for the homecoming of loved ones for Christmas.

Mrs. M. F. Starr expects her children and their families to be with her, at Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Harper's home, a large connection is expected to celebrate there; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ridley will welcome their family home for the best loved day in the year; Mrs. Gordon McClure expects her sister's family from Queensville. More of Christmas doings anon.

To the editor, staff and readers of this column—the best Christmas yet!

"Christmas"

Christmas is a lovely thing, Joy and gladness given wing, Seek to bring a sweet surprise, Into sad and lonely eyes.

Christmas offerings at the manger May be kindness to a stranger, Maybe to a friend to say—"You have helped along the way."

Gold, we may not have in store, But we have, what's worth far more; Many a chance along the way, To make bright some Christmas Day.

Frankincense you may lack, too, But that needn't hamper you, When you have a chance to say Some secret word on Christmas Day.

Carols, songs and hymns of praise This the spice of myrrh, we raise To the Lord who, Christmas Day Gave His Son, our debt to pay.

WHITCHURCH COUNCIL

BUDGET EXPENDED FOR ROAD UPKEEP

Whitchurch Township Council on Monday marked their final meeting of the year by sanctioning some $3,688 for road work expenditures. The council have expended their total allotment budgeted for at the beginning of the year, and although there was some difficulty in securing trucks for hauling gravel this fall, feel that the work has been done well, and good winter roads are anticipated.

J. A. Clark and Pat Murphy seem to keep sheep that the dogs have a special liking for, and each had small claims for damage caused by dogs in the month of November. They were approved and paid.

The council petitioned the Dominion Government along with other municipalities to allow free transportation to soldiers in uniform for Christmas and New Year season. Councillors Kidd and Wells sponsored the resolution, a copy of which will go to Ottawa.

Hospitalization costs for Nov. were $94.12, while Dr. Williams, M.O.H. was paid $270 for his services. The M.O.H. pay was determined quite definitely several years ago, when the court approved the amount Dr. Williams demanded. All members of council were present for this meeting.

Accounts Ordered Paid: J. Crawford, postage and revenue, $18.90; J. Crawford, registrations, $16.00; J. Williamson, truant officer, sanitary inspector and deputy game warden, work, $33; J. W. Williamson, constable services, $49.75; R. Windsor, constable service, $45.55; S. W. Hastings, coal, $15.40; J. Crawford, secretary B. of H., $4; Dr. Williamson, venereal diseases, $14; Dr. C. CHRISTMAS ESSENTIALLY THE DAY OF THE CHILD

December the 25th is the Day of the Child.

It is upon this day of days that countless men and women and little ones barely able to speak their language, utter the great rejoicing: For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

Even those who hold creeds in which there is no Christmas feel the splendor of that cry, and those who have no formal creed at all, still know there is one of the 365 portions of the year which is essentially the Day of the Child.

It is the day when even the most unsentimental adult, long since congealed and hardened by the year, can hear in his heart the footsteps of the little ones. To-day they are running about so eagerly all over the world, pattering to see what good gifts may have been received, ardent with a hope that only young hearts can feel.

On this day the austere scientist who has almost quit believing in the very laws of astronomy, which recently seemed so sure and stable, but which now seem dissolving in a midst of relativity—this careful professional skeptic becomes a child himself, and considers it hard indeed if he cannot believe in Santa Claus, bearded fairy godfather of the children.

On this day even those who have been the most careless feel like saying over reverently that beautiful prayer for wisdom in the rearing of children:

"Almighty God, heavenly Father, who hast blessed us with the joy and care of children; Give us light and strength so to train them, that they may love whatsoever things are true and pure and lovely and of good report."

For on this Day of the Child, we all remember that the most precious gift we can bestow upon our children is a capacity for feeling just such tender and generous and helpful emotions as to-day stir in the breasts of all good men and women.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

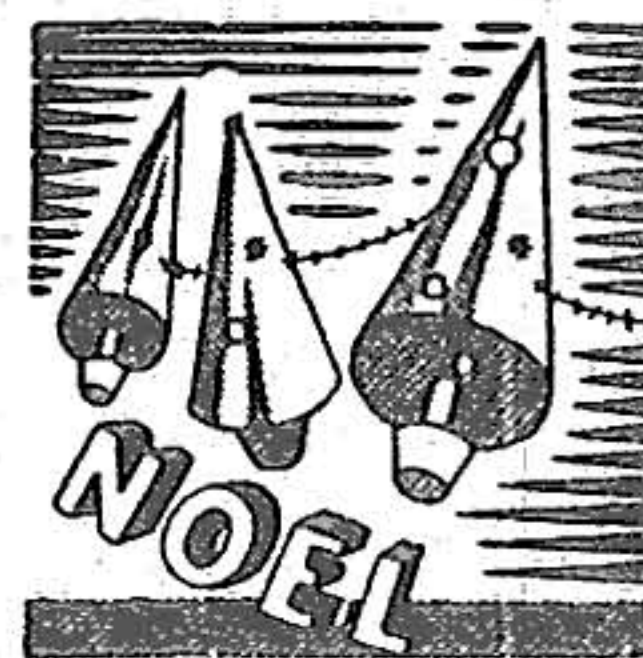

As we again reach this Christmas Season of Merriment and Cheer, which brings us to the end of another year, we are not unmindful of the many blessings the kindly providence has dealt. We take this opportunity of expressing our sincere feelings to our many members, patrons and friends and to wish each and all a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Everyone LIKES TO BE COMPLIMENTED

"... we pause at the personnel of this Company, one towards speeding up the efficiency of making of progress in many ways in this district has done in all districts in Canada." —Huntingdon Glenner

"The company has earned the reputation of being one of the most efficient organizations in the country, and its employees have developed a sense of public obligation which make them always courteous and helpful. The Bell Telephone Company is a striking example of what can be done by efficiently organized co-operation in public service." —Barrie Examiner

"The Bell Telephone Company of Canada is an instance of a private corporation providing a public service — of necessity a monopoly — in such a manner as to avoid criticism almost altogether." —Orillia Packet-Times

"The Bell Telephone Company has advanced to be one of the finest public service corporations in the world, that state-ment having regard to the service it renders the public and the treatment it affords to the thousands of employees it takes care of." —St. Catharines Standard

"In many respects the Bell Telephone Company is a model for other large public services. It has been unceasing in its efforts to improve its equipment, spread its net of communication and insure continuous and courteous service." —Kingston Whig Standard

"It has helped convert Canada from a purely agricultural country into one that is largely industrial. It has changed the countryside from a lonely panorama of isolated farms into a community of neighbors. It has speeded up business everywhere." —London Free Press

"The general public is not very articulate about such anniversaries, but nevertheless we believe that all Canadians take pride in the celebration of the Bell Telephone Company's 60th Anniversary." —Brampton Conservator

"It has always kept pace with the times and with the startling improvements in telephony that have periodically made their appearance as the result of research activities, and it is to-day better equipped than ever to meet the demands made upon it and to render that service for which it is renowned." —Brockville Recorder & Times

"The Bell Telephone Company has ever been in the forefront in making available to the public every improvement that science has discovered. Today it stands as a monument of efficiency and devoted public service." —Montreal Star

"It is one of the finest of our privately owned public utilities, and at times may almost be said to perform miracles." —Toronto Star Weekly

"The Bell Telephone Company is a splendid example of well-justified public monopoly, just as anxious to please as to be in the business and giving service at a lower rate than it did have competitors." —Newmarket Era

...and so do we!

Encouragement once in a while heartens the spirit, makes you feel your efforts are appreciated. This year — our 60th Anniversary — has been for us a memorable one. There has been praise and appreciation. Editors, executives, men and women throughout the community we serve have come forward with kind words and best wishes for our future. Some typical comments are reproduced at left. Every telephone worker feels deeply grateful for these expressions of goodwill, confidence and friendship. We all hope that we may continue to deserve the approval which has been so widely expressed.

Tribute Paid Late Isaac Pike

TAUGHT SCHOOL
FOR 45 YEARS

Seldom has the four corners at Bethesda in the heart of Whit-church township seen more people at one time than on Friday afternoon, when friends from far and near came to pay their last respects to the old school master, Isaac Pike, whose death occurred on Tuesday in his 88th year.

First there was a service at the old home just north of the Bethesda corner, and here Rev. M. Bricker, presiding elder, conducted a service for the family and immediate relatives. The body was later conveyed to the little church near the home where Mr. Pike had labored, and taught the Sunday School for 50 years, as well as being a local preacher. This public service was presided over by Rev. I. Brubacher, M.B.C. pastor, there. Folks filled the building an hour before the arrival of the funeral cortege, and scores just waited in their cars. The sermon was taken by Rev. Samuel Goudie, who chose that most appropriate text from the book of Samuel, where it is written, "This day a great man is fallen in Israel." Rev. L. E. Atkinson, who went to public school to Mr. Pike, read the lesson. Numerous other ministers were present to silently testify to the exemplary life led by this outstanding man whose christian principles and influence had permeated the whole district in which he lived.

The funeral cortege reformed after the service and proceeded to Dickson Hill cemetery where the casket was silently borne to its final resting place by Charles and Clarence Atkinson, Clare Bolender, Samuel Doner, William Paisley and Wesley Steckley.

Born on the 9th Concession of Markham Isaac Pike commenced teaching school at a comparative early age for those days. He put in a year or two in Markham schools then took over the Bethesda "academy" when benches were the order of the day without desks, and everybody used their own spit to clean slates. Occasionally a very dignified family sent the child to school with a bottle of water to be used for cleaning purposes, but such fastidious practices were frowned on by other pupils. Mr. Pike often recalled that many of his pupils were his own age, and the boys, half of them, were in long pants.

The early days were not too promising for there were "bullies" and family backing for wrong doing that promised no end of trouble. Still, "The Master" as he became known, was no quitter, and he lived to subdue such influences and to teach the grand-

NOTICE

"CHRISTMAS MAN" NAME
GIVEN TO KRIS KRINGLE

Santa Claus does not visit the children of Lithuania on Christmas eve as he does the children in this country, but there are all kinds of Christmas celebrations in which they have a part, and many good things to eat. In Germany and Norway old Kris Kringle hides gifts for the children in many out of the way places and Christmas day is spent chiefly in hunting for them. In Holland Saint Nicholas dispensed Christmas cheer, but when the Hollanders came to this country his name was changed to Santa Claus. In Sweden Santa Claus is much like he is in America, but he does not come down the chimney, but in the night he comes into the room where the Christmas tree is and leaves gifts for all. His name is not Santa Claus, however, for he is called "The Christmas Man."

children of his first pupils. He not only taught them the three R's, but he instilled in many of them a determination to travel the straight and narrow path which leads to eternal life. For 45 years Mr. Pike carried on this work, always on small salary which were notorious over those years. He used to often tell of taking his first few years in the school at around $150 per year.

Deeply religious and a man of firm conviction, Mr. Pike was a local preacher and travelled through many a stormy night and heavy road to expound the truth at some group meeting. This he continued to do until just a few years ago, and had preached from every M.B.C. pulpit in the district, as well as in other churches on occasion.

It is only 22 years, since Mr. Pike retired and scores of our parents were taught by him. In 1936 and 1937 two outstanding picnics were held at Ratcliff's west of town in honor of Mr. Pike when grandfathers and grandmothers gathered to pay their compliments, present the master with a gift and go away feeling proud. On one of these occasions Mr. Pike stood up with all his 85 years and recited without hesitation, "Oft in the Still Night," one of his favorites.

Isaac Pike never lived in a retired life, for when his professional teaching days ended he was an active hard-working farmer to the end of his days. No wonder it is said of him, "A great man has fallen."

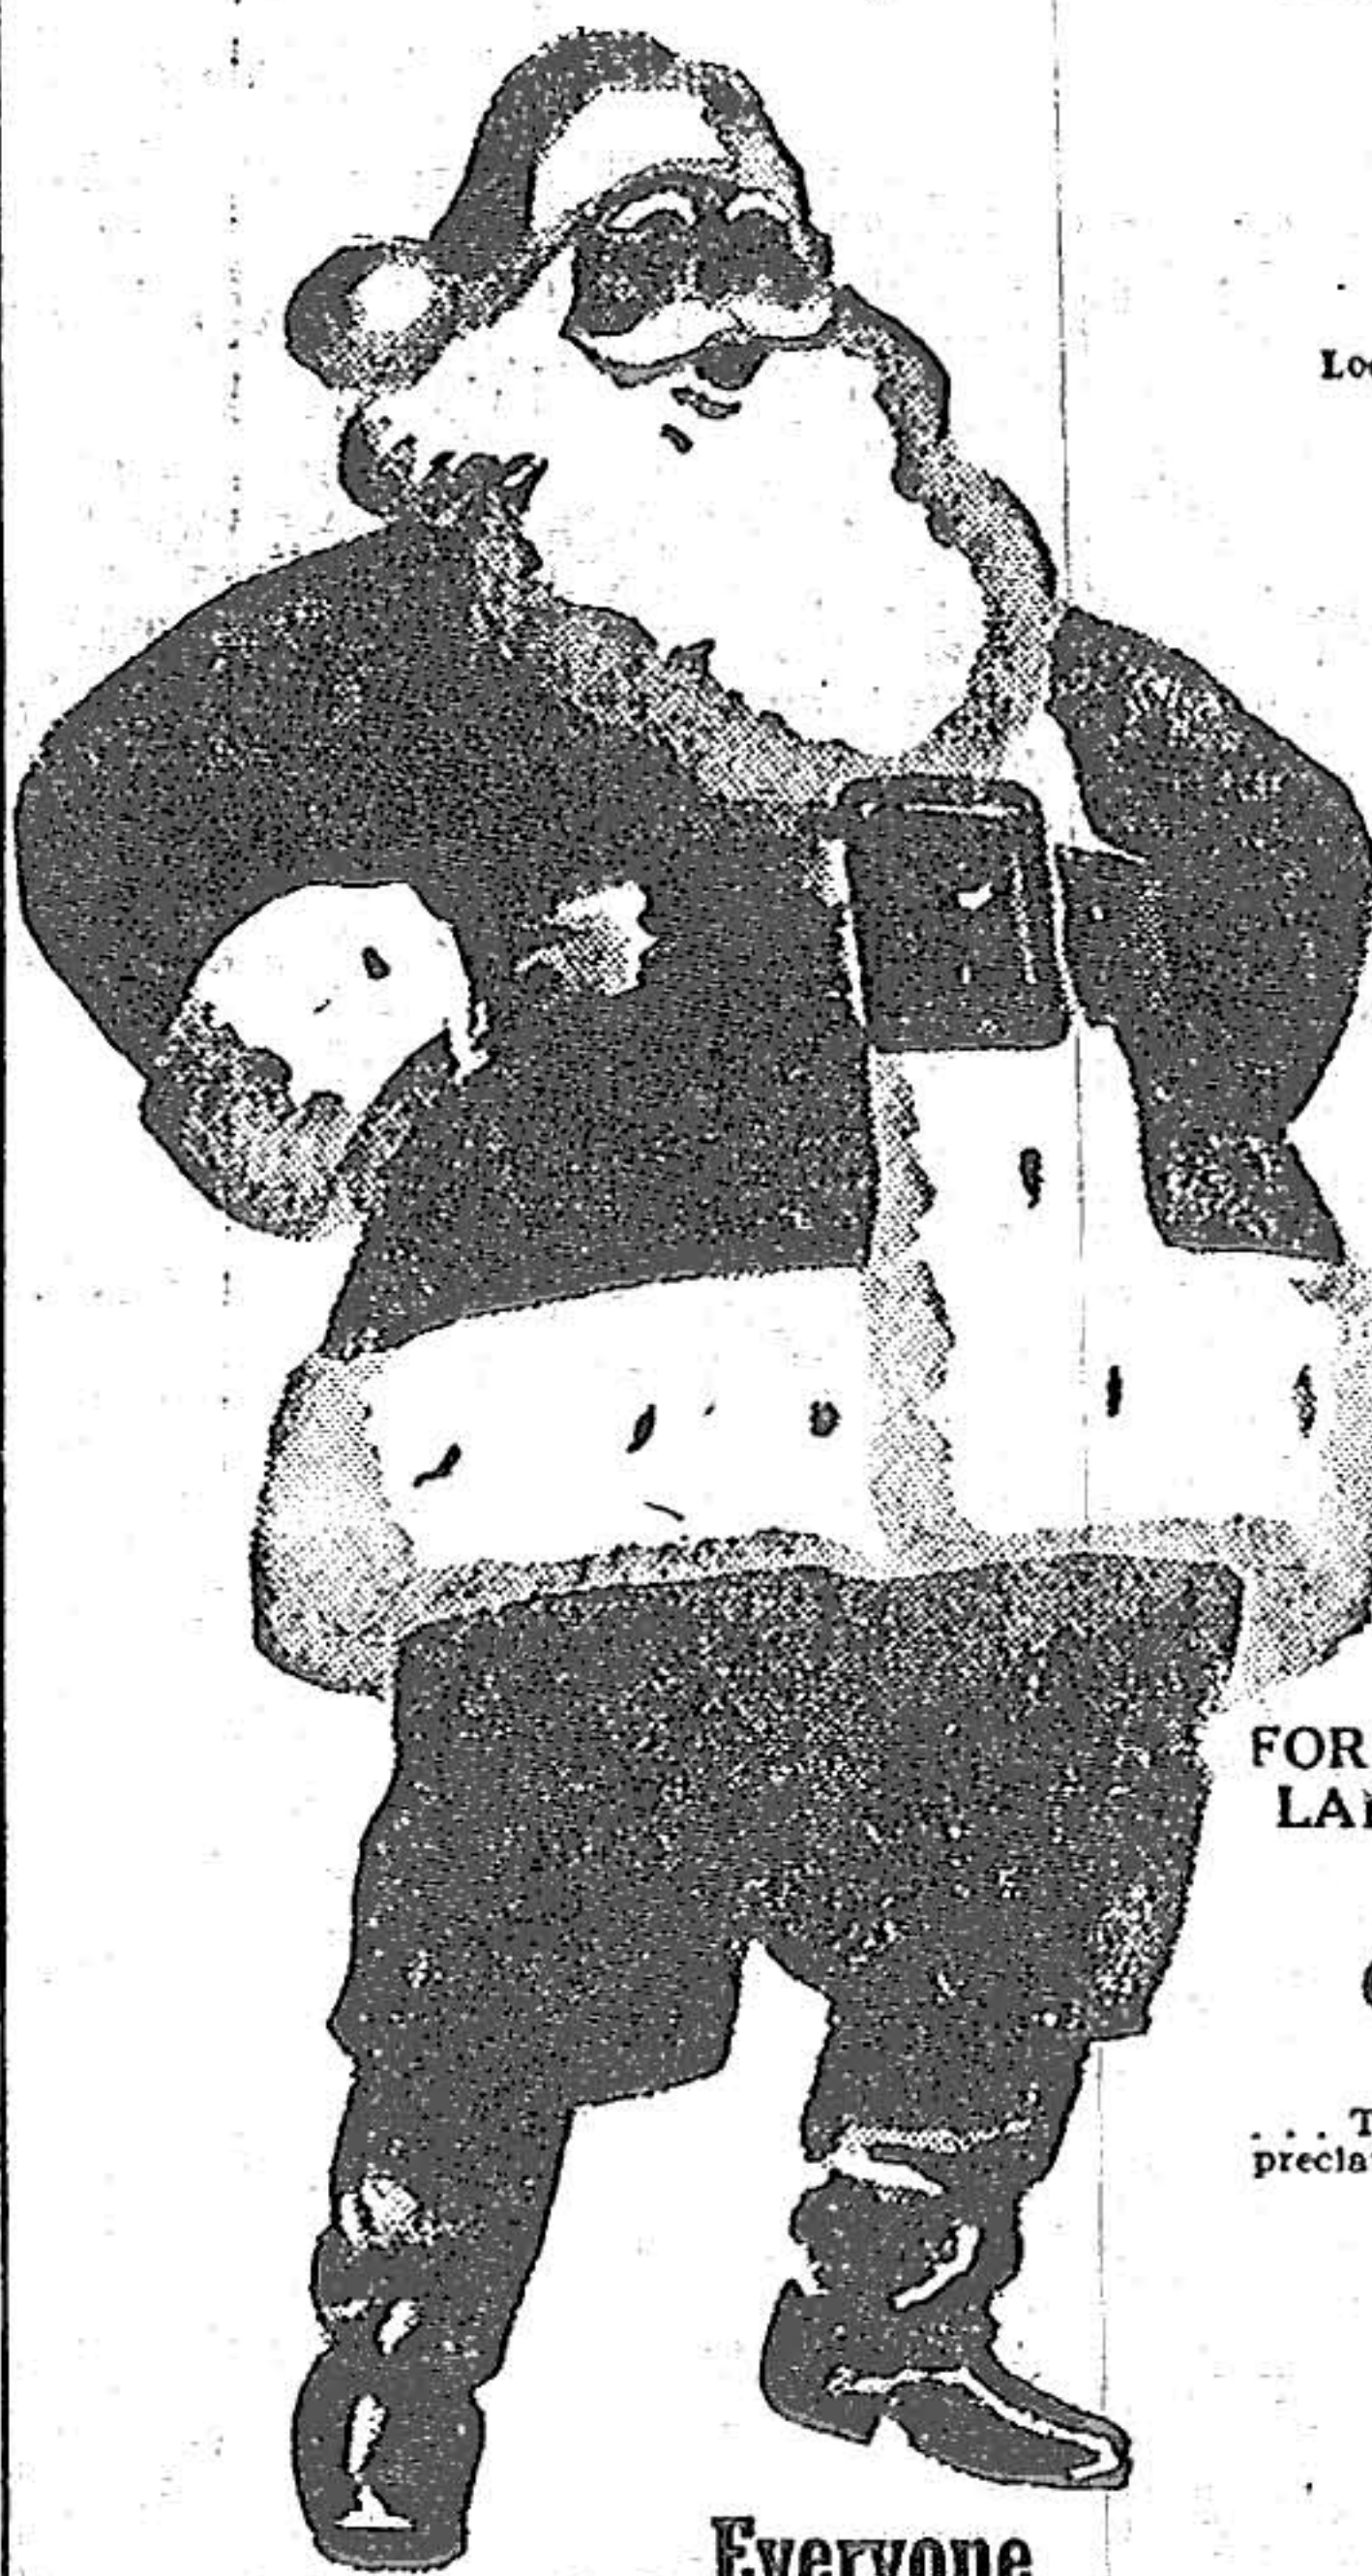

He is survived by his wife and a family of ten children, four of whom followed their father in the teaching profession. They are: Abram, Allen and Howard, of Toronto; Rev. Russell Pike, Singhamton; Edward, of Calgary; Lloyd, of Sutton; Mrs. Cora McKee, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Clifford Burkholder, Miss Lydia and Maurice, all of Bethesda—Stouffville Tribune.

fourth day the police had to close off Bay street because the throng was so great.

The men enlisted in the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, as distinct from the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve of to-day. Some, however, are back in service in this war, as they were in the last.

"He was a great tower of strength to the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and did much for yachting, being known the world over in yachting circles," said Commodore T. K. Wade, of the R.C.Y.C., when informed of the death of Com. Jarvis.

"As a boy, to me, Aemilius Jarvis was always a hero, both as a sailor and a sportsman, and he maintained that standing through out his life. He was a sailor and a man and his work for yachting and the Royal Canadian Yacht Club will always be remembered," Com. Wade said.

Mr. Jarvis' eight years of life were intensely lived, in hard work and hard play.

In him the empire had a devoted supporter of British connection; Toronto, a man for many years notable in finance, the Royal Canadian Yacht Club its most famous member; the North York Hunt its master; and hundreds of citizens a dear and respected friend.

The rugged frame of Aemilius Jarvis was hewn from sound timbers and his high qualities of mind and heart were its counterpart.

GREAT ENDURANCE

On his 80th birthday, in April, he celebrated the day by riding as joint master of the fox hounds of the Toronto and North York Hunt. He shared the honors of the day with Lady Eaton who offered the hospitality of Eaton Hall for the birthday celebration.

Aemilius Jarvis always winced when anyone dared label him a "grand old man." But "The Grand Old Man" of yachting and the hunt he was and as such his memory will be revered across the Dominion and far beyond her borders.

He rode to the line and he sailed to the line, going straight and sure and by the shortest route. In his younger days he was a fine oarsman and an excellent lightweight boxer, but his love for yachting and horses showed early in his long life. And there was never any doubt—Aemilius Jarvis could sail a boat and he could ride.

LOST IN BATTLE

In a full life there needs must be great joys and great sorrows, and on the eve of his 80th birthday, Mr. Jarvis said his greatest personal sorrow had been the death of his son, William, who was lost in the Battle of St. Julien in 1915. He fingered a crested ring as he said it—a ring given him by his son for safe-keeping. It bears the family motto, "Saps Dieu, Rien"—"Without God, Nothing," and this exhortation was his guide through life.

In his last years Aemilius Jarvis knew full well the dangers confronting the Empire in the mighty struggle for lasting peace. On his 80th birthday he evidenced his great confidence in the outcome, but offered then a word of advice for the nation. "For Canada," he declared, "I'd say the most important thing is to back the Empire up to her last dollar."

AN HONORED NAME

The name Jarvis has loomed large in the affairs of Ontario for nearly 150 years, and Aemilius came from a great line. Admiral John Jarvis, the victor of the 18th century battle of Cape St. Vincent, belonged to one branch of his family. Mr. Jarvis' grandfather was William Jarvis, a United Empire Loyalist, who fought under Col. John Graves Simcoe with the Queen's Rangers in the American Revolution. When Simcoe became Governor of Upper Canada, William Jarvis was his Secretary of State. Mr. Jarvis' Grandfather, Captain Samuel Peters Jarvis, was Brock's aide at the capture of Detroit.

Aemilius Jarvis, who took his Christian name from his uncle, Sir Aemilius Irving, was born at the family home, Bonshaw, on Yonge street a few miles north of Hazelburn, his home for the last quarter of a century. Some of his earlier years were spent in Hamilton and in the district, but he was educated at Upper Canada College. His services in the last World War were great, and at the outbreak of hostilities again in 1939, although nearing his 80th birthday, he again offered his services to Ottawa "to do anything they desire of me." His services in the Great War were sought for a secret mission—that of providing Canada's Atlantic Q-boat patrol. He was commissioned to procure ships in the U.S. suitable for anti-submarine warfare and for his successful efforts he was awarded the Special Service Decoration and thrice received the thanks of the Admiralty and of the Canadian Minister for Naval Affairs.

In the 1914-18 struggle, Mr. Jarvis was responsible for the enlistment of 2,000 sailors for the naval service. In the first year of the war he established a naval recruiting station in his office enabling the Defense Department to secure sufficient retired service men to fit out and man H.M.C.S. Niobe and Rainbow. In 1916 he inaugurated a school of naval instruction for the training of young officers and mechanics for the R.N.V.R. motorboat patrol, and he assisted in establishing recruiting stations throughout Ontario for overseas naval service.

HIS CAREER

Sixteen years old, and his education at Upper Canada College completed, Aemilius looked to the lakes. He sailed as apprentice and able seaman in the lake schooner "Edward Blake" and the barque "Surprise," crossing the Atlantic twice in one and three times in the other. He became a certificated master mariner. But sailing was to be his avocation, not his vocation in life. He had to earn a living and set about doing it by becoming a junior in the Bank of Hamilton. Despite his youth, he progressed swiftly and four years later he found himself manager of the Traders Bank branch at Hamilton. Then he became one of its inspectors at Toronto. In 1892 he founded the firm of Aemilius Jarvis & Co., an institution that flourished for three decades.

FOUGHT FOR JUSTICE

When Mr. Jarvis celebrated his eightieth birthday he was asked: "Of all the things you've done in those 80 years, Mr. Jarvis, which has given you the most satisfaction?"

"The very thing which eventually landed me in jail, the buying of $18,000,000 in bonds for the government at a time when Canada's banks couldn't possibly take them," was his reply. "That was the highlight of my financial career and it resulted in my being branded a criminal and in making the government of the day over $4,500,000 without costing it one cent."

This was a reference to the famous Jarvis case which followed the collapse of the Drury Government in 1923. Mr. Jarvis had been retained to secure certain bonds for the government. He did obtain them and his apparent profit on the transaction was half a million dollars. This was in accordance with the agreement he had made with the provincial cabinet but a charge was laid of conspiracy with the Provincial Treasurer of the time, the late Peter Smith.

The Treasurer was involved in sixteen other charges which had no connection with Mr. Jarvis and to which he pleaded guilty. A joint conviction was made in the conspiracy charge and Aemilius Jarvis was sentenced to six months imprisonment, a fine of $60,000 and a joint fine of $600,000 was imposed upon him and the Provincial Treasurer, with the condition that they should both remain in prison until one or the other paid it.

HAD GREAT FAITH

Mr. Jarvis immediately appealed against the sentence and it was so manifestly impossible of execution that it was modified and he paid over to the government $200,000 which more than covered his personal profits in the whole transaction.

For 11 years he toiled night and day for a new trial which would establish his innocence. This was quite generally believed in and Mr. Jarvis' standing in the community remained as high as when he was at the zenith of his prosperity, but the legal machinery of Canada was not such as to give him an opportunity to present the new evidence which would have obliterated the conviction. A special tribunal of high court judges gave sympathetic consideration to his unflagging efforts to secure a new trial but could not find a legal vehicle for it.

Mr. Jarvis' fight for vindication was untiringly supported by Lieut.-Col. Frank Moss of Toronto, the late Sir John Willison, and the late Hubert Macrae, K.C., and others. But of these and of a number of witnesses of crucial importance whose evidence was never taken, only Col. Moss survives. To him attaches great credit for unflagging zeal in attempting to secure justice.

SHARON

CHRISTMAS CANTATA ENJOYED

The Christmas concert held in Sharon Community Hall last Thursday evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. The program was given by the pupils of Sharon school, and several of the community. The main item was a "Cantata," "Santa Claus Changes His Mind." The music was played by Mrs. Lyons of Newmarket. The stage and acts were directed by Mr. Caster.

A rainbow drill was given by several of the girls, directed by Mrs. Caster and Miss Alice Hall.

Mr. Caster wishes to extend hearty thanks to Mrs. Lyons, Miss Hall, Mr. Rutledge and Miss Lunney for their assistance in making the concert a success.

ed, from Solent to Chicago. His advice was highly valued and sought by Sir Thomas Lipton, in his contests for the America Cup. In the 1920 contest, Mr. Jarvis was navigating officer of the 23-metre "Shamrock" and a number of the board of strategy of the challenger.

Seven times was Mr. Jarvis chosen commodore of the R.C.Y.C., in 1897, 1898, 1902, 1903, 1911, 1912 and 1913. When, in 1923, he retired after a quarter-century of office, he was made the sixth life member of the club in seventy years, and presented with a silver loving cup. Up to that time he had won 300 sailing victories in home and international waters, and he went on winning victories up to the last year of his life, flying the red-yellow-and-black over the 12-metre yacht Metina.

VENTURES IN YACHTING

In 1874 he won his first yacht race with the "Saunterer," a yacht owned by several Hamilton gentlemen. His cousin, L. H. Irving, had brought back from Europe, black, yellow and red ribbons, the colors of Belgium. These, reversed, were to become famous on fresh and salt water as the Jarvis colors.

The Whistling was his first attempt at designing and building a deep draught English cutter. She was a failure at first, but the addition of ballast enabled her owner to win races. There followed, from his own designs, the two Chaperons, the Viper, Samoa, Thistle-down and Bonshaw. He bought the White Wings for $1,400, won 22 races and $1,800 prize money with her, and sold her for $1,500.

Other famous yachts which flew his square flag with its red, yellow and black were the Merry thought, Zahra, Vigilant, Haswell and Venture. In the schooner yacht Haswell he sailed from Toronto in 1920 to Jamaica and back, and his interesting experiences on that voyage
